1       I.       Reasons for Chapter 11 Filing and Intentions in Chapter 11

2           The Debtor owns a number of parcels of real estate and various entities through 3       which he conducts substantial farming operations. However, the Debtor has been 4       experiencing financial difficulty due to low commodity prices and higher interest rates and 5       costs. As a result, the Debtor has been unable to meet his obligations as they have become 6       due and determined that he needed to file for Chapter 11 to obtain a reprieve that would 7       allow him to restructure his debts.

8           Through this Chapter 11 case, the Debtor intends to sell certain parcels of land to 9       reduce his secured debt and hopes to engage in a constructive dialogue with his secured 10      lenders to restructure the debt on the real estate parcels that are integral to his continued 11      farming operations. While the Debtor's efforts since filing this Chapter 11 case have been 12      largely focused on completing a successful harvest, which is critical to his reorganization 13      efforts, the Debtor expects to move forward with proposed asset sales in the next sixty to 14      ninety days.

15      II.       Schedules and Statements

16           On August 16, 2024, the Debtor moved for an extension of the time to file his 17      Schedules of Assets and Liabilities and Statement of Financial Affairs ("Schedules and 18      Statements") [Dkt. No. 16]. The Court granted the Debtor's motion on August 21, 2024,
19      extending the Debtor's deadline to file the Schedules and Statements to September 4, 2024
20      [Dkt. No. 20]. The Debtor timely filed his Schedules and Statements.

21      III.     Retention Applications

22           The Debtor intends to file an application to retain Loeb & Loeb LLP in the next 23      week. In addition, due to the number of parties on the Debtor's master mailing list, the 24      Debtor also intends to file an application to retain Donlin Recano & Company, Inc. to 25      serve as the Debtor's claims and noticing agent.
